After the completion of their sophomore year, students move to LT's original building, located at North Campus, for their two years as upperclassmen.

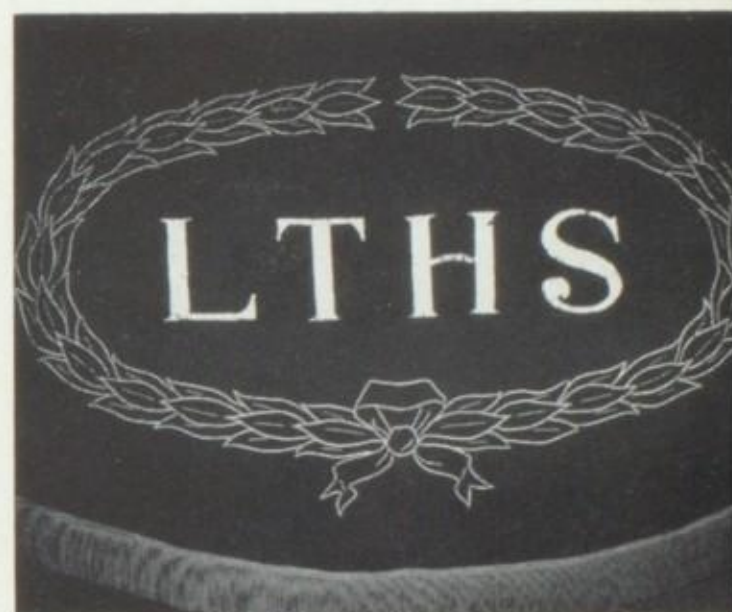

Since its construction in 1951, the Vaughan Building, latest addition to North Campus, has served as the home of the mathematics, music, and athletic departments.

1956 saw completion of South Campus, the building used exclusively by freshmen and sophomores.

We are expanding dimensions . . .

We are students. We and the school are reciprocal dimensions. Each of us is continually pushing back his boundaries of growth and maturity. Our dimensional composites lengthen and deepen with each new situation: some increase rapidly, others develop more slowly. The school plays an important part in this development, expanding our scopes of knowledge, thought, and experience, while we in turn extend the dimensions of the school. By participating in the academic and extracurricular programs, each of us helps the school determine in what areas expansion is necessary to fulfill changing needs. This interaction results in a complement between the part and the whole — the student and the school.

We learn. We strive to extend the dimensions of our minds through education. The school provides us with a wide range of academic experiences. Required courses afford us a basic education, while electives permit us to acquire additional knowledge in individual areas of interest. Through this liberal program we prepare for the future by learning to direct the product of our aptitudes.

We apply our knowledge. Performance is an essential part of existence. It is the yardstick that is used to measure our effectiveness in today's society. Each of us must constantly perform. When we cease to do so, we stagnate; we fail to utilize our knowledge and skills, factors determining the quality of our performance. Greater proficiency in society is a result of our improved performance and extended dimensions.

We participate. The more experiences we have with various persons, the greater our comprehension of individuals and of society as a whole. As we become involved in the workings of groups, we learn that no matter what size an organization is, its progress depends upon the contribution of each member. Since each of us profits from his association with the group, it is apparent that the group and the member contribute equally. To expand our understanding we must communicate with others, work with others, compete with others. As our insight increases, we become more mature and capable participants in the community of man.

We compete. In order to become more versatile members of society, we must expand the dimensions of our physical activities, as well as those of our mental efforts. Physical challenge in varying degrees is offered to everyone. Each of us decides to what extent we wish to meet this challenge, whether we confine it to the required physical education program, or whether we extend it to include additional activities in the field of physical competition. The extent to which we accept this challenge can determine the dimensions not only of our athletic prowess, but also of our sportsmanship, cooperation, competitiveness, and physical well-being.

We dream. Our expectations, whether they pertain to the immediate or to the distant future, are an important element in our growth and education. They are the foundation for our achievements. Sometimes our goals are vague; other times they are clearly defined. As our desires become more firmly established, we tend to expand those dimensions which will enable us to fulfill our dreams. When we falter under the demands of the preparatory years, our hopes act as a stimulant, giving us new strength to meet our responsibilities. This is when we begin to realize some part of living, of trying, of succeeding.

ACADEMIC

Our intellectual curiosity receives its greatest impetus during the challenging period between childhood and adulthood. Within the comprehensive and complex academic program provided us at LT, we find both encouragement and direction in our search for ideas. It is natural that academic ambition varies in intensity and depth; for this reason a wide range of courses from vocational to collegiate levels has been developed. The extent to which our intellectual insight is deepened in these high school years has a lasting effect upon our achievements in future society.

Mr. Olsen recipient of state-wide commendation

Establishing an effective and compatible leadership for the administrative, faculty, and student groups of North and South Campuses requires both competence and insight. Endowed with these capabilities, Mr. Olsen has been highly instrumental in guiding LT to a place of state and national prominence among high schools. Ever-mindful of the role of a large high school in the community, he has helped the school gain the deep respect of the entire township.

Recognizing Mr. Olsen's nineteen years of constant and outstanding efforts in building a superior school and in working to improve secondary education, the Illinois Association of Secondary School Principals awarded him its highest honor. Unlike many awards which are presented on a regular basis, this is awarded only when it is determined that someone has made a truly significant contribution to the highest goals of education and service. The fact that this honor has been conferred only seven times within twenty years is eloquent proof of its unique award status. We have already realized Mr. Olsen's value to us. It is reassuring to find others who recognize his accomplishments as well.

A school is basically an educational institution. To establish a program of sound education is in itself a difficult task; but there are many additional problems associated with management. The solution of these problems is the responsibility of the Board of Education and the administrative assistants. Ranging from handling financial matters to administering tests, they keep the school running smoothly and efficiently. Without their help, LT could not have attained the quality and fine reputation it enjoys today.

for all phases of education

A command of the English language is essential in conveying clear, concise ideas. Through the concentrated study of composition and journalism, the English Department hopes to develop a greater proficiency in self-expression. Exposure to literature through texts and outside reading furnishes students with a background of human experience upon which to draw in everyday living. By providing students with thorough instruction in the fields of speech and dramatics, the department seeks to increase the students' abilities in the area of oral communication. Just as a spotlight reveals the features of a performer, a knowledge of English clarifies concepts in other fields.

Today's headlines announce that yesterday's "impossibilities" have become realities. A fine example of this is to be found in the Department of Science where the rate of advancement in educational procedures in recent years has been greatly increased.

Lectures, class discussions, and laboratory experiments aid the student in the realization of his fullest capabilities in this field. The science faculty hopes that the experience gained from their instruction will lead some students to pursue science on higher levels and will give others a basic knowledge for regular, daily application.

Thought patterns, in addition

One of the foremost assets one can hope to gain in his education is the ability to think in a clear, logical manner. Recognizing this, the Department of Mathematics offers courses intended not only to teach basic mathematical principles, but also to develop the skill of deductive reasoning — a faculty which can be applied in any subject area. To meet the demands of individual students, a variety of courses from remedial arithmetic to the calculus is offered. In addition the department supplements the formal curriculum by sponsoring monthly math seminars to discuss topics of special interest. In this way, mathematics, a subject interesting to some and useful to all, is presented to everyone according to his need.

Endeavoring to guide the student toward a better understanding of himself and his environment, the Social Studies Department considers man a social being rather than a self-sufficient entity. By reflecting upon the triumphs and failures of past generations, the individual student gains a clearer insight into the functions of society which enables him to analyze the problems of his own era. With a greater knowledge of himself, he is better prepared to assume the role of a worthwhile citizen.

Records, tape recordings, and movies, as well as textbooks are significant and frequently used teaching aids in the Language Department. A student in this subject area is expected not only to acquire the grammatical and conversational skills of a specific language, but also to become thoroughly familiar with the cultural aspects of the country whose language is being studied. By correlating the study of a country's social facets with its native tongue, the student is able to comprehend more easily the principles and rules of the language. The addition of the South Campus language laboratory, which has facilities for accommodating an entire class per period, permits the student to gain greater foreign language proficiency through continual practice.

study, practice yield appreciation and skill

LT's Department of Music strives to instill in its students an appreciation for the many contributions of this art to society, rather than to develop professional musicians. This is done by providing courses in the study of music interpretation, as well as by giving the gifted student an opportunity to develop his talent through group participation.

The major musical events of the year are the Christmas and spring concerts and the operetta. In addition the band plays at every home football and basketball game and the choruses participate in several assemblies throughout the year. Setting a musical precedent this year was the orchestra's Pops Concert. It met with great success and may become a tradition at LT. The department recognizes that the enjoyment of music is just as important as its performance; creation of this enjoyment is the underlying purpose of all its endeavors.

The orchestra's Christmas Festival performance of "Sleigh Ride" provides relaxed listening for both audience and choruses.

Art students explore expressive media in creative

By channeling creative expression through comprehensive instruction, the art division of the Department of Industrial Arts and Art seeks to provide the opportunity for students to receive a broad education covering art's varied areas. Several courses are available, varying in degree of difficulty and subject matter covered. In all areas, students are encouraged to develop initiative, to exhibit an inquiring attitude, and to improve their own ability. Working with media ranging from watercolor to wire enables the individual to further his skills through interesting applications of technique. Exposure to diversified art styles through books and magazines as well as individual projects gives students wide experience in the field of art.

Students are taught

Instructors in the general field of practical arts hope to give their students a combination of knowledge and skills in the industrial, commercial, and home arts. These fields provide the areas in which a student may learn to co-ordinate both his mind and hand in the application of new techniques.

In the Department of Home Economics girls learn new methods of cooking and quicker steps in sewing, in addition to general principles of homemaking. Students acquire dexterity in operating business machines and gain skill in clerical techniques through courses offered by the Department of Business Education. Those participating in courses within the industrial arts division of the Department of Industrial Arts and Art master the design of power tools, their safe and useful application for private and industrial purposes, and safety precautions. The varied skills developed through courses offered in these departments lead to many worthwhile and satisfying outlets.

ACTIVITIES

Our participation in extra-curricular activities is an integral and essential part of our education. The experiences and associations with others outside the classroom complement the knowledge attained through the media of books, demonstrations, and lectures. As we continue our formal education we develop many new interests, but the time allotted for each respective class does not give us ample opportunity to investigate these areas fully. We depend, in part, upon the student organizations to transmit these interests into future service, fellowship, and education.

While president Jerry Glashagel studies the agenda for the remainder of the meeting, Student Council Secretary Liz Creer reads the minutes of the last meeting to Representative Assembly.

Divided into two houses, the Representative Assembly and the Student Council, LT's Student Association assists in the planning and executing of many school activities. The aim of this organization is to give students practice in democratic procedures and to help everyone become a more active and interested participant in school functions.

Combining their efforts, these two groups sponsored many successful activities and projects. Among these were the Freshman Guidance program, the well-attended series of informative discussions on Communism, the 1960 Homecoming Activities, the Club Carnival, and the Obirin Talent Show. Also under Association direction were the pep assemblies, the tutoring program, the publication of the "Gold 'n' Blue Guide", and several elections and dances throughout the year.

brings Gina, Kim to LT

Dimitra Tokatlis and Nguyen-Gia Kim, better known to their American friends as Gina and Kim, were welcomed to LT as a result of the Student Council's annual Foreign Student Drive. Each year the Foreign Student Committee's fund raising program is expanded as new projects are included. Next year, in addition to having two foreign students here, an LT student will be given an opportunity to study abroad as a foreign exchange student. Everyone at LT has enjoyed having Kim and Gina with him, not only because of their interesting backgrounds, but also because of the friendship they have extended to the LT students.

Kim pauses briefly during a football contest to make some necessary camera adjustments while photographing a game for the "Lion."

"Don't bleed into the gutter" and "How many picas are in the head?" are remarks frequently heard by members of the Tabulae staff. This year's fifteen staff members were under the leadership of five assistant editors and three editors: Tom Nepil, managing editor, Bonnie Mordica, copy editor, and Marcia Southworth, art editor. In addition to spending most of their free time working on write-ups, cropping pictures, and typing finished copy, the staff also attended several conventions to keep abreast of the latest developments in yearbook journalism. Aided by sponsors, Mr. Bull and Mr. Hazard, this journalistic organization learned new techniques in yearbook publication and acquired a basic knowledge of yearbook copy writing and art. The Christmas party and annual spring picnic offered fun and recreation for the staff.

Working to beat a deadline, "Tab" staff members Margie Daly and Gail Bradley are prepared to continue long after the late-afternoon sun-light has faded.

earned by "Tab," "Lion"

The unprecedented receipt of four state and national awards was the highlight of the year for the Lion as the staff found the formula for creating a successful newspaper. The Illinois State High School Press Association elected the LT newspaper president of the organization, while Northern Illinois University and the DeKalb "Daily Chronicle" named it the paper with the best coverage. Quill and Scroll, international honorary journalism organization, judged the "Lion" number one in national competition, and the National Conference of Christians and Jews designated the paper's brotherhood issue as the best.

The efforts of the "Lion" staff composed of English IIIJ students, senior staff members, and several South Campus volunteers, guided by Miss Keefe, were also directed toward aiding the "Tab" staff in hosting the Scholastic Press Guild convention.

The present staff initiated a South Campus Club organization which met with senior staff members to gain experience in newspaper work. Several out-of-town conventions also provided an opportunity to gain professional advice on the publication of the newspaper.

Communication skills

Meeting once a week with their sponsors, Miss Thurnau, Mrs. Lindquist, and Mr. Rehn, the members of LT's Debate teams prepared themselves for tournaments and meets at other high schools and near-by colleges. This year the topic viewed by all debaters in the United States was: "Resolved: That the United Nations Should be Sufficiently Strengthened." Cross-examination, a new method of debate which provides more time for questioning, was introduced into the program this year.

"Resolved: That the National Old Age Medical Assistance Program Should be Revised" was the topic of a tie-debate in December between Anne and Janet Roede, two of LT's varsity debaters, and two representatives from a high school in Hammond, Indiana, on the WBBM-TV program, "Rebuttal." Varsity debaters competed in the state finals at the University of Illinois in April.

stressed in these clubs

Comprised of member schools from all over the world, Quill and Scroll is an honorary society for outstanding journalism students. Selected in their senior year by the sponsors of the school publications, the nominees go through an initiation ceremony before becoming members. Under the sponsorship of Miss Keefe, the chapter's activities included two important contests, a current events contest, which was open to any student who wished to participate, and a newspaper contest in which the Lion took first place in the nation this year.

"I dreamed I was in Afghanistan in my little green jeep" was the subject of themes written by members of Writers' Club at one of their bi-monthly potlucks. Members brought grab bag gifts to their Christmas party. A riddle in poetry, attached to each gift, vaguely described the contents of the package.

Under the supervision of Miss Jordan, the club compiled and published "Pen and Inklings," a booklet comprised of prose and poetry selections written by students. At Writers' Club meetings, the compositions submitted were read and criticized by the club members. After the publication of the book, a tea was held for all students whose compositions were printed.

Foreign language clubs give opportunity

Spanish melodies are still ringing in the ears of Spanish Club members as they recall the Caveda Brothers' program of Spanish songs and a talk on Cuba, their former home. The largest club at LT, boasting 165 members, Spanish Club meets five times per year to celebrate important Spanish holidays and learn of the culture of Spanish speaking countries. The club began the year with a Columbus Day meeting followed by the Pinata Party, the annual Christmas celebration, and an observance of U.N. week. The traditional Chile Supper climaxed the year. Because of rising membership, the club met this year in three sections: Los Castellanos, Spanish I at South Campus; El Circulo Chico, Spanish I at North Campus; and the older El Circulo Espanol consisting of Spanish II and III students.

for further knowledge and enjoyment

"Oui" je parle francais" are familiar words to members of French Club. Open to all students who have had at least one year of the language, the club increases knowledge and interest in France. A variety of programs, including a talk by Nguyen-Gia Kim, who is LT's French exchange student, a speaker from the University of Chicago, and flimstrips, enabled members to learn more about France in addition to improving speaking skills. At the Christmas party, club members played French games and sang carols. Showing movies at the Club Carnival proved a profitable and humorous way to end the year. These activities were supervised by Miss Lutz and Miss Ford.

Members of Russian Club, under the supervision of Mr. Petronaitis, had many opportunities to work together and learn about various aspects of Russian culture during the past year. They combined manual efforts with entertainment in building their Homecoming float and Club Carnival booth. A chance for learning about Russian culinary techniques was offered at the annual Christmas potluck as members, attired in colorful costumes, brought various Russian dishes. The public was invited to their "vecherinka," or evening party, held in May, where Russian dancers and singers performed to illustrate some facets of Russian folklore. To bring an end to a year of color and entertainment, members held a picnic in late spring.

Members of Vergil Club, under the directorship of Miss Birney, include most students who are studying Latin at North Campus. The purpose of the club is to further one's interest in Latin and increase his knowledge of Roman culture. During the first meeting, club officers were elected. At another meeting Miss Acutt entertained the group with her slides of Greece and Rome. During the Christmas season the members celebrated Saturnalia, an ancient, Roman holiday honoring the god, Saturn. A picnic in May provided a pleasant ending to a year of activities.

The members of Latin II Club, under the sponsorship of Miss Pring, Mr. Hammerlund, and Mr. Petronaitis, will long remember the fun they had building their Homecoming float, "Et Tu, Brute." Later in the year, at the annual Christmas party, songs were sung in Latin and a skit about "Io Saturnalia" was presented. Following the original purpose of the club, skits and guest speakers gave the members insight into the history of Roman culture and the Latin language. Their fortune-telling booth at the Club Carnival was very successful and provided fun for everyone. In April, toga-clad members ate and played games at the popular Roman Banquet.

Divided into independent clubs at each campus, sponsored by Mr. Hoch, Miss Rathert, and Miss Meyer, German Club members worked jointly on several activities. Winning second place with their Homecoming float provided a good start for a successful year. At the annual Christmas party, third year German students presented the Christmas story. A highlight of the visit to a German restaurant was a comic re-enactment of the legend about the famous Swiss hero, William Tell. Participating in the Club Carnival and a visit to a German movie concluded the year's activities.

Learning the fundamentals of safety in connection with the use of firearms is the main purpose of Rifle Club. Meetings held four times a week provided opportunities for members to fire at least once weekly at the South Campus range. As skill in firing was increased, members competed for National Rifle Association awards. Bowling, Rifle Clubs

Bowling once a week under the leadership of their sponsors, Mr. Langlois and Mr. Gooch, the 120 boys in Bowling Club found enjoyment and satisfaction in watching their averages improve. There were two independent clubs at North and South Campuses, but both bowled at La Grange Lanes. The North Campus boys bowled on Tuesdays and the South Campus members on Mondays. One of the highlights of the year was the Junior Bowling Congress Tournament in which bowlers from both campuses competed.

FTA and FNA offer

Through membership in Future Nurses of America, a girl is assured of a thorough introduction to the nursing profession and special counseling in regard to her selection of school and program. Helping these girls decide whether to enter a practical nursing program, diploma program, or collegiate program are the sponsors Miss Kuntz, Mrs. Wells, and Mrs. Smith. To provide part of the funds necessary for giving the four-hundred dollar Mildred Fetzner Nursing Scholarship to a senior girl, the members sold confetti at the Homecoming game. In addition, South Campus supported the scholarship fund by selling candy and flowers and sponsoring "Project 50" in which each member invited friends to her home and charged thirty-five cents per person for an evening of games and refreshments. Monthly meetings featured guest speakers, films, and field trips. Community activities this past year included Christmas caroling at a home for the aged and work in an orphanage.

insight into possible career choices

This year was a busy one for the Future Teachers of America. Under the guidance of Miss Corley, Mr. Cermak, and Mr. Petronaitis, the prospective instructors were introduced to new aspects of their chosen profession. Guest speakers and films provided the future teachers with information concerning the preparation for and benefits of a teaching career. The club was praised for its original idea of having a "walking" float in the Homecoming parade. The members met other students interested in becoming teachers when representatives from the Hinsdale, R-B, and Dowers Grove FTA chapters attended the March meeting. To celebrate its tenth anniversary the club held an FTA-Faculty tea in April.

The members participated actively in decorating bulletin boards, visiting various art shows, and creating decorative accessories for school teas. Mr. Hindmarch, a commercial artist in LaGrange, presented a lecture and demonstration of caricatures at one of the regular meetings. The "Make and Draw, Carve and Paint Society" also created a first-prize float for Homecoming, a polka-dotted inchworm bearing the words "Inching up to the President's Cup."

With the help of their sponsors, Miss McCusker, Miss Riemenschnieder, Mr. Moody, and Mr. Miller, the members played an active part in the Pops Concert. Mrs. Otto, a professional singer, entertained at one of the bi-monthly meetings with songs from hit musicals. At meetings where no special program was provided, the members gathered around the piano for an informal song-fest. At the Club Carnival, Mu Tau provided an opportunity for anyone to conduct a small combo. foundation for many clubs

Encouraging students interested in all phases of dramatics is the goal of Thespians, the dramatic honor society. The group, sponsored by Mr. David Thompson, is composed of LT's most active performers and production personnel. Elected members use their knowledge and gained experience by participating in, creating scenery for, and working on school productions.

She pointed at the stranger and wildly cried out, "No, no, stay away."

Don't be alarmed — it's only an act — a scene from one of the plays this year's Drama Club presented for its members. Consisting of students interested in all phases of the theatre, the club participated in its many activities under the direction of Mrs. Herndon. Among the most successful of these activities were student programs, speakers, and trips to see professional productions.

Business and Home Ec

Under the able leadership of their sponsors, Miss Koller, Mrs. Pidcock, Mrs. Stockdale, and Mrs. Jennings, the girls in Home Ec Club had an exciting and educational year. Even though their Homecoming float, "Yield One President's Cup," failed to win a prize, many fun-filled hours were spent assembling it. A discussion of the various fields of home economics and a cooking demonstration highlighted two of the monthly meetings. At the Club Carnival, weary, famished masqueraders found refreshment at the Home Ec Pizza booth. For her superior knowledge in the field of home economics, Jane Schmitt was presented with this year's Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow Award. A dinner at Freden's Restaurant in April and a picnic in May finished out the year for the club.

Clubs further vocational hobbies

Displaying skills others than mechanical, members of Business Club prepare a colorful poster for their booth at the Club Carnival.

Having completed its constitution and by-laws last year, the Business Club enthusiastically entered its second year by participating in the Homecoming activities for the first time. Under the sponsorship of Mr. Eckerle and Miss Ripley, the club better prepares its members to enter the business world by inviting people from various organizations to speak at the meetings. A visit to a local center to see IBM electronic computers in operation provided this year's club with its last major activity. At the final meeting the members elected the president and the treasurer for 1961-62.

Talks and visits to several exhibits were of valuable assistance to members of Stamp and Coin Club. Under the sponsorship of Mr. J. Davis, participants were able to increase and improve their collections by attending auctions and trading sessions. These meetings were especially helpful since members learned "how and what" to collect. Quizzes, created by the president, provided additional knowledge concerning stamp and coin collecting as well as stimulating entertainment.

Collection, concentration,

Chess Club members watch intently as a participant makes a move toward the desired checkmate.

Matches played by members of Chess Club, under the direction of Mr. Peyton, helped them gain practice for the meets between suburban schools and the Suburban Chess Entente tournament. Speeches at meetings advised members on strategies, openings, and defenses so that they might improve their games. Because the players were divided into two ranks, each person was able to use his skill to the best advantage. The spring picnic completed the year's activities.

Although relatively new and small, Square Dance Club was never lacking in enthusiasm. Sponsored by Miss Jacobson, the club engaged the services of Doc Adams, an official caller, at their bi-monthly meetings, held in the home of one of the twenty active members. In addition to their regularly scheduled meetings, the North and South Campus members were often seen enjoying themselves at adult square dances in this area.

action familiar to clubs

In its first year at LT, Saddle and Spur, sponsored by Mrs. Goodwin, united equestrians through their common interest in horses. Aside from active horseback-riding sessions, presentations by guest speakers from Oak Brook Stables and the Quarter Horse Association constituted many of the meetings. Movies also added sparkle to the bi-monthly sessions and instilled members with the various aspects of the sport. Demonstrating their enthusiasm, the members laid a strong foundation for further development in this new area of interest.

Science-minded students

Working to increase members' knowledge of the construction and operation of "ham" radio equipment was the main purpose of Radio Club meetings.

Assisted by their sponsor, Mr. Warning, club members studied the requirements needed to pass their radio license tests. The hours spent in repairing and broadcasting on that club's radio station W9MTJ provided valuable experience for the radio enthusiasts. A special outlet for members' activity was exploring the possibility of establishing a Civil Defense station at LT. Completing the year's activities was the Field Day in which members were allowed to communicate with radio operators in the area.

Camera Club. Row 1: Richard Meldon, Frank Failing.
Row 2: Thomas Makinson, John Rieck, Mr. David Brown.

Once a month, guided by sponsors, Mr. Brehm and Mr. Brown, members of North Campus Camera Club and its South Campus counterpart worked at developing their skills in picture composition, darkroom techniques, and the use of specialized equipment. Movies and guest speakers provided the program for most of the meetings. In the latter part of this year, a representative from a camera store in La Grange gave the members some helpful tips on camera care and picture taking. At the Club Carnival the South Campus club took Polaroid snapshots which provided enjoyment for everyone.

To provide a place for science enthusiasts to meet and discuss their views on branches of science which particularly interested them was the main purpose of Bi-Phy-Chem Club. Weekly meetings, open to anyone wishing to attend, included demonstrations and talks by members, movies of special interest, and occasionally lectures by professional scientists. Even though the North Campus club, sponsored by Mr. Hanson, and the South Campus club, sponsored by Mrs. Wenner, held most of their meetings separately, several combined meetings were scheduled. At these meetings talks were presented on such subjects as the story of the atom and the uses of radiation.

Raising funds was the big project for Conservation Club this year as the members, directed by Thomas Davis, Mr. Love, and Mr. Kirchman, helped in the purchase of Rocky Creek glacial area in southwestern Illinois. The drive was in keeping with the club's goals of interesting students in the use and preservation of natural resources. Besides the fund drive, the club made field trips to conservation areas in the state and wrote to Congressmen expressing their opinions on pertinent conservation bills. At special meetings they entertained authorities in the field who kept them posted on the latest developments in conservation.

Pep, Twirlers' Clubs provide fun

Roberta Asaro and Gwen Tiedt, two members of LT's Twirlers, add active entertainment to the fall band concert.

Participation at athletic events and parades helped the Twirlers develop and use the many skills and routines acquired through constant practice. Under the direction of Mr. Hilgen-dorf and Miss Halm, the girls gained experience in individual twirling and precision marching. The use of pom-poms, batons, and flags added color and interest to routines. Attending the Illinois High School Music Contest in the spring the enthusiastic members ably represented LT.

Sale of programs, pom-poms, and Lion pins by South Campus Pep Club helped instill school spirit in the student body. Members, under the direction of Mrs. Pitcher, also spent time preparing skits for pep assemblies and painting pre-game posters, which were displayed throughout the halls. As a result of their enthusiastic work, athletic events were well supported.

Nurses' Aides,

An outside consultant provides an interesting program for a South Campus Junior Red Cross Council meeting.

Striving to help the less fortunate is the main objective of the Junior Red Cross Council. Directed by Miss Ripley, Miss Skirha, and Mrs. Stockdale, this year's volunteers were kept busy filling Junior Red Cross boxes with basic necessities to be sent to the Chicago Chapter, where they were distributed throughout the Chicago area. Another council project was making small gifts to bring enjoyment to the aged. At Christmas time, workers made and filled Christmas stockings which were sent to children in hospitals to brighten their Christmas. The annual council activity, selling shamrocks on St. Patrick's Day, not only provided many students with the "touch" of green traditionally worn on March 17, but also furnished the council with additional funds. To give students a chance to contribute to the Red Cross and also become members, the annual membership drive was again sponsored by the council. The year's activities were brought to a close with a picnic.

LT's many Aides are invaluable for effective functioning of the school. The duties which these students perform help the school to carry on much of its business. Among the different types of assistants are the library aides, who help to keep the library running smoothly; the office aides, who help with paper work and are messengers; the nurses' aides, who file records and take temperatures; the door guards, who enforce lunch-hour rules; the audio-visual aides, who manage motion picture projectors, tape recorders, and sound systems. Through the tasks done, these students are able to take responsibilities and to be of service to others.

SPECIAL EVENTS

Our high school years are one of color and emotion. Existing apart from our day-to-day academic efforts are the special events which highlight our experiences at LT. These events represent mutual interests for a majority of the student body. While some of us place special emphasis upon the big dances and others may find enjoyment in the plays or concerts, the special events, taken as a whole, provide a unifying force, bringing together the otherwise dissociated four classes.

The State and Madison bulletin board heralds the approach of Homecoming with artistic reminders of the many events of the week-end.

Alums from '36 honored at '60 Homecoming

Despite quarter tests, term papers, and extra-credit work, students spent many hours building floats, contacting alumni, and planning the activities for the 1960 Homecoming. Excitement mounted at the Friday night pep assembly as cheerleaders introduced new cheers and the crowd awaited the announcement of the queen and her court. Eleven o'clock Saturday morning found the streets lined with spectators waiting to see the annual Homecoming parade led by the band and followed by club floats and cars driven by students and alumni. The only dark spot in the week-end's events was the loss of the football game to Downers Grove. The close score, 27-25, left no doubt in the minds of the LT fans that the Lions had put up a good fight. From eight-thirty to midnight, students danced in the Vaughn gym to the music of Lane Emery's orchestra. Midnight marked not only the end of the dance, "Misty," but also the reign of the queen, Sue Sekera, and her court, Barb Barcik, Kathe Biondi, Barb Hvale, and Sue Smith.

The announcement of her election as Homecoming Queen brings tears of joy to the eyes of Sue Sekera and spontaneous congratulations from surrounding friends.

The entrance of the varsity football team at the pep rally sends the crowd's enthusiasm to even greater heights.

Despite the junior beanie, the sign on the side of the car indicates the true status of these alums in the Homecoming Parade.

Floats, football, ingredients of memorable

While the band waits to get into the Vaughan Building, admiring youngsters watch the varsity football players lace up their shoes in preparation for the second half of Homecoming action.

Spirit boosters Cindy Wintermute and Noil watch the varsity football team maintain a touchdown drive in the Homecoming game.

Homecoming weekend

Before the parade, flowers and other floats attract the attention of court members Barb Barcik, Sue Smith, Barb Hvale, and Kathe Biondi, while Queen Sue Sekera smiles in excitement and anticipation of her unique day of royalty.

Students find the dance, "Misty," a fitting and enjoyable climax to the event-filled Homecoming weekend.

"Hot Mustard!" yell Bill Perry and Mary Treadwell as he attempts to teach her the latest dance craze.

The story of a girl's desire to become an actress was portrayed in this year's Fall Play, "Years Ago." The production was presented by the junior class and directed by Mr. Stacey.

At the age of sixteen, Ruth Jones decides to become an actress. Her father, who was formerly a sailor, is quite stubborn about money matters, and definitely opposed to Ruth's stage aspirations. Her mother doesn't encourage the idea, but she is sympathetic toward Ruth. Others in the town of Wollaston, Massachusetts, have different plans for Ruth's future. Fred Whitmarsh wants her to settle down with him, but Mr. Bagley and Miss Glavin hope to train her to be a gym instructor.

At the climax of the play, Ruth leaves for New York with her father's treasured spy glass as a stake for her future.

in "Harvey"

The adventures of an invisible white rabbit set the stage for this year's Spring Play, "Harvey," by Mary Chase. The production, directed by Mrs. Sharon Herdon, was presented April 21 and 22. Sets were constructed by Mr. Thompson's Stagecraft classes.

Elwood P. Dowd, a mild-mannered man, has as his best friend a six-foot rabbit named Harvey. The fact that nobody else can see or hear Harvey heightens the humor. This situation leads to a questioning of Elwood's sanity and finally his sister, Veta, decides to have him committed to a mental institution. In a hilarious mixup, Veta is committed instead of Elwood; and, when the mixup is discovered, a search begins for the missing Elwood.

Dr. Chumley, head of the mental institution, at last finds Elwood — but he also finds Harvey. Because it is virtually impossible to separate the two, it is decided to give Elwood a shot of medicine that will make him forget Harvey. Just before he receives this injection, however, a friendly cab driver tells Veta how radically Elwood will be changed by this shot. Veta decides that she likes Elwood the way he is, even with Harvey, and the three of them live "happily ever after."

In one of the many rehearsals, Ed Eversole practices an important telephone conversation for the Senior Class production, "Harvey."

Ed Eversole looks disbelievingly at Mickey Tamulis as Rich Moody prepares to commit him to the institution.

As their buggy rolls toward Bird-in-Hand, Ralph Alexander and Marilyn Mills look out over the scenic Pennsylvania countryside which, moments before, had inspired her to sing "It Wonders Me."

"Plain and Fancy" contrasts

The humorous and provocative incidents which occur when two New Yorkers visit an Amish colony form the foundation of the highly entertaining plot in Hague and Horwitt's "Plain and Fancy." This Operetta was produced under the combined efforts of Mrs. Herdon, Mr. Lawler, Mr. Thompson, Mrs. Vilter, and Mr. Miller.

Ruth Winters and Dan King have come to Bird-in-Hand, Pennsylvania, to sell Dan's inherited farm. They arrive the day before the wedding of Katie Yoder and Ezra Reber. There is trouble, however, when Ezra's brother, Peter, who loves Katie, returns to the colony and wants to marry her. Meanwhile, Hilda Miller begins to think she has fallen in love with Dan; this also poses problems. During the second act, Ezra decides to go to the "sinful" carnival at Lancaster, and Hilda boldly does the same. Ezra, after getting drunk, becomes involved in a brawl, but is rescued by Peter. When they all return home, Papa Yoder realizes that it is Peter who deserves to marry Katie, and not Ezra. Dan and Ruth finally settle their differences, while Hilda comes to the conclusion that Amish men aren't so bad after all.

Mary Treadwell looks both amused and disgusted when the drunk Craig Schultz is found in her dressing room by one of the Amish girls, Cynthia Eck.

to weekend activities

Taking first place with "Leg up on the President's Cup," the 1960 Homecoming float set the pace for this year's Corral activities. In addition to usual Friday and Saturday evenings, the program included the Winter Olympics, "Big Nites," and monthly dances.

In January, work on the 1961 Corral Show began with the selection of writers, chorus lines, and leads. Based on an original western theme, "Twang" proved most successful, playing to capacity audiences for each of its four performances.

The Corral officers and board were assisted in their planning and organization by an expanded committee system, adult director Mr. Bert Kraus, Mrs. Kraus, Junior Directors, and many volunteers.

Finding that he has left his Corral membership at home, Steve Gorman buys a missing membership from Carol Ruggles and Shelley Rusteen.

Striving to give every girl an opportunity to participate in after school activities, Girls' Club, led by the officers, board, and council, outlined a full calendar of events this year. After combining efforts with Boys' Club to construct a prize-winning Homecoming float, the members toasted their fathers with the Dad 'n Daughter Dinner, "My Heart Belongs to Daddy." The year was highlighted by the election of the King of Hearts at the annual St. Valentine's Day dance, "There Goes My Heart." As the school year came to a close, Girls' Club ended a year of activities with the Tab-signing party.

efforts for winning float

In an all-out effort to prove Boys' Club better than Girls' Club, this year's Boys' Club Board concentrated mainly on preparations for the annual dance. Presented in March, this dance, entitled "Melodies of March," represented months of planning for the floorshow, decorations, and other aspects of the dance.

Earlier in the year, momentarily overlooking their rivalry, Boys' Club and Girls' Club worked together to construct a Homecoming float. The float, which received an honorable mention, depicted an LT spider that was "Spinning Toward Winning." Another joint effort on the part of the two clubs was the adoption of a six-year-old girl from Korea, Kim Bok Yoon.

Band and Orchestra

Under the direction of Mr. Hilgendorf, the North and South Campus bands provided half-time entertainment for LT students at football and basketball games. The band members marched in local and school parades as well as giving demonstrations on the football field. They also performed at the Christmas Concert and the Spring Music Festival. In March, the North Campus musicians previewed their annual Band Concert at a North Campus assembly. A rewarding year of hard work and fun terminated with a picnic in May at Bemis Woods.

The state of Mr. Hilgendorf's tie is only one of the indicators of the amount of work involved in directing the band at a basketball game.

add musical touch to productions, parades

At a weekly orchestra rehearsal, Clark Hulse and Rosemary Findley work on their part of the operetta score.

Melodious sounds of a flute or violin can often be heard during Orchestra practice. Although there are separate groups at each campus, members combine in one unit for Thursday night rehearsals. At these practices, Mr. Miller, the director, assists the musicians in perfecting their ability. The many performances given throughout the year were a result of this concentrated effort. This year the orchestra took part in the fall play, the operetta, and graduation. At the music contest, individual members were judged on their presentations and given appropriate ratings, while the Orchestra as a whole was judged one of the two best in the state. In addition to these performances, smaller ensembles made appearances upon request.

Sharing a music stand, bassoonists Val White and Bill Wilson devote all their attention to perfecting a number for the Orchestra concert.

Student vocalists

LT's choruses, under the direction of Mr. Fred Lawler and Miss Judith Riemenschneider, had several opportunities to exhibit their skills this year. They entertained audiences at the freshman, sophomore, and junior open houses and the Christmas and spring concerts. In addition to participating in these programs, treble choir, a new choral group composed of chosen upperclass girls, took part in the Christmas vesper service.

The Choir, made up of selected junior and senior voices, spent a busy year preparing music for performances in the Christmas and spring concerts, the Christmas vesper service, West Suburban Music Festival, and the Baccalaureate. "Plain and Fancy," this year's operetta, was made a success by many weeks of intensive work and rehearsals. Outstanding members of choir, known as small choir, appeared outside of school as well as with the entire group.

ATHLETICS

A touchdown pass, a last-second basket, a home run — these are all thrilling moments for both participants and spectators, but the underlying purpose of an athletic program is not to provide relaxation or to develop skills. Rather, it is to build the character of each student through physical competition. The sportsmanship and spirit of cooperation which one gains in athletic activities are worthwhile traits which should be cultivated in everyone.

The 1961 Varsity Football team had a new look this year as Mr. Tony Juska began his first year as head coach. The Lions enjoyed a fairly successful season with a 5-3 record and a third place tie in the WSC.

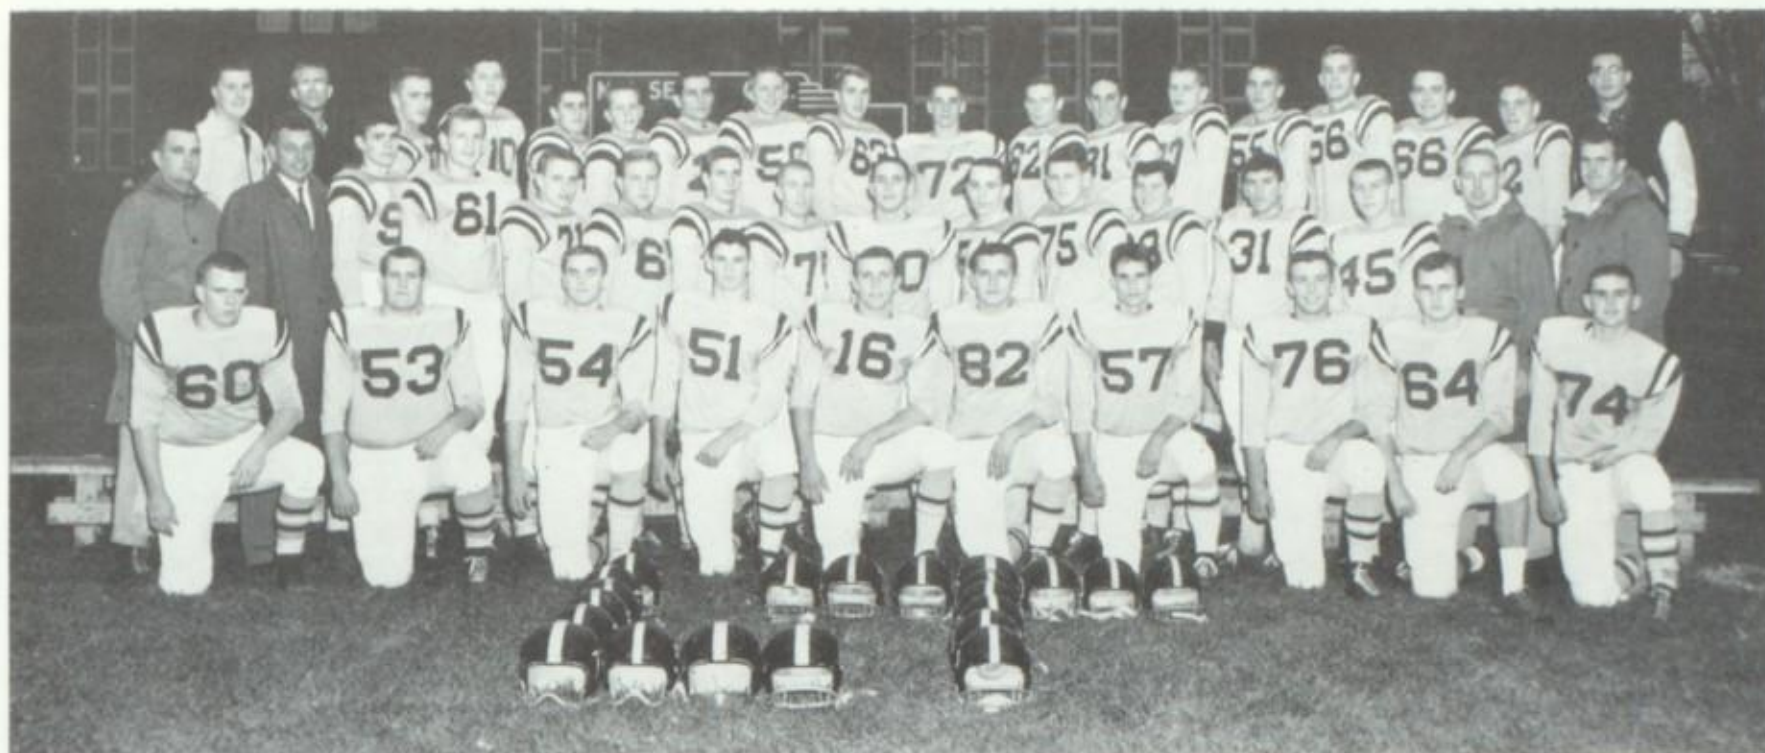

Starting the season on a winning note, the squad defeated Oak Park in a non-conference game, 12-7. Beaten by Glenbard in the first conference game, the gridders then mauled Arlington, 37-6. This was followed by a thrilling 7-6 win over R-B in which all-conference half-back Tom Melchior plunged for the winning extra point late in the fourth quarter. In the best game of the season, the Homecoming contest, LT fell short of beating a favored Downers Grove squad, 27-25. All-conference end Ray Ingersoll caught a long touchdown pass with twenty seconds left in the game to defeat York 20-13, providing an appropriate climax to one of the most thrilling grid seasons in recent years.

By losing many of the first string to the Varsity, the Frosh-Soph Football team faced the difficult problems of inexperience and adjustment this season. After losing the annual preliminary game with Oak Park by a 19-6 decision, the Cubs went on to capture two wins in the next five conference contests. Coach Deason's gridgers played a brilliant game for the Homecoming crowd by "downing Downers" 31-0. In a frosty game at York, concluding the season, the team's defense bristled against the Duke attack in maintaining a 6-6 tie.

In addition to compiling an 8-2 dual meet record, Coach Max Armer's thinclads placed second in district competition and finished eighth at the state meet held at Champaign-Urbana. Because of the large number of juniors that competed this year, the 1962 season should yield outstanding results.

The Frosh-Soph Cross Country squad completely avoided the taste of defeat this year by capturing the first place position in stiff West Suburban Conference competition. Coached by Mr. Jon Knowles, the Cubs compiled a total of 11 wins with a single tie marring their near-perfect record.

and sportsmanship

Hard work of the Cheerleaders helped to increase the spirit of the crowds at football and basketball games. The chosen girls spent many hours after school enthusiastically practicing new cheers and perfecting older ones. In the fall the squads attended the Illinois Cheerleading Clinic, which was held this year at Proviso West High School. The frosh-soph squad, composed of sixteen girls from South Campus, sold programs at various athletic events. Money collected from this project may finance a new set of varsity uniforms for next year's basketball season.

Varsity cagers finish

Although the Varsity Basketball team finished the conference in a third place tie in the WSC, the record is not truly indicative of their play. The pattern for the season was set in the opening game, which saw the Lions down Morton 61-60 in an overtime. Led by all-state guard and conference scoring champ Dick Ruggles, the team continued to play consistently close-scoring games, losing three games by a total of nine points. These losses included the closest any team came to beating Maine, three points, and a one-point decision to York in the final game which resulted in the tie in conference standings. Highlights of the season were the shooting of Ruggles, and the rebounding and all-around play of Nick Bolum and Dennis Boone. With four experienced players returning, aided by additional height in the front line, Coach Art Sandusky is looking forward to an even more successful season next year.

After losing two disappointing games to York and Glenbard by four points each, the Cubs won their last six games. The last contest, a victory over York for the conference championship, furnished a dramatic ending to the season.

Cup campaign

"Never say die" was the motto of Coach Bert Kraus' Varsity Wrestling team this year. Starting the conference season with three defeats in a row, the grapplers made a complete reversal by winning their last four meets to tie Hinsdale for third place. The season's high point was reached when they defeated Arlington, one of the strongest teams in the WSC, by the lopsided score of 33-9. Outstanding individuals who earned all-conference recognition were John Massarello, 95 pounds; Ovie Williams, 112 pounds; and Ben Bishop, 120 pounds.

Led by undefeated grapplers Bernie Bonkalski and Tim Yount, the Frosh-Soph Wrestling team swept by all opposition in earning a well-deserved conference championship. A fitting climax to a thrilling season was provided when LT boys gained two pins and a point victory in the last three matches to defeat a strong Reavis team by three points.

Track team captures state crown,

Led by a strong nucleus of returning lettermen, the 1960 Varsity Track team enjoyed a highly successful season. Coach Russ Deason's thinclads followed a championship in the WSC with a sixth place in the state meet. Again this year, LT will be considered a strong threat for the conference title.

Last year's Frosh-Soph Track team finished with a respectable third place in the conference meet. In reviewing a highly successful indoor season, as indicated by a record 106 points scored by LT in the Naperville Relays, Coach Knowles expressed high hopes for a conference championship.

The Varsity Golf team had a successful 1960 season, tying for third place in the West Suburban Conference with a 3-3 record. After initial losses to Morton and Joliet Catholic, the team sharpened their accuracy to win the next four meets. Outstanding in these efforts was the 8 1/2-6 1/2 decision over the highly-rated Joliet Catholic team in a return dual-meet. Concluding the season, the team placed second in the conference tournament posting a 5-5 season record. With returning lettermen Steve Coman and Dan Milligan, the team coached by Mr. John Payne, will be a strong contender for conference honors this year.

GAA members benefit from leadership

Providing an enjoyable sport for every girl is the main purpose of GAA. In the spring, newly elected officers and the gym teachers chose new board members, each of whom was to be in charge of a different after-school activity. In addition to the athletic aspect of the yearly program, several social events were planned. Included in these were the Homecoming float, a Christmas tea, the Dad and Daughter Dinner, and the GAA spring dance. A full year was brought to a close by the Mother-Daughter Banquet held in May.

Carol Hula, Norma Novy, and Jill Johnson practice arm swings, while other members of advanced dance practice leg stretches.

CLASSES

An important transition takes place in our high school years. It is at this time that we must undergo not only physical, but also mental and emotional growth if we are to be fully prepared for later life. As we pass from one year to the next we add to our formerly limited range of experiences by attaining more leadership and accepting added responsibility in school affairs. In this way we may gradually learn to cope with many of the problems which we will inevitably meet after graduation.

Freshman board engages in

Although the Freshman Class was the largest at LT this year, their superiority in numbers was easily diminished by their lack of seniority.

Class members learned the importance of school traditions while showing their school spirit and enthusiasm in making the Freshman Class Homecoming Float "Raise Our Flag to Victory". Another event which provided a chance for students to work together was the class party "November's Essence". Decorated in a fall theme, the party gave classmates a chance to become better acquainted.

An additional Frosh highlight was the class assembly, one of the few times when all students were together. Here class sponsors Miss Soldat and Mr. Lund, class officers, and members of the athletic teams were introduced.

After being initiated into the routine of high school life, the class of '64 looked forward, impatiently to the time when they would assume the position of South Campus Upperclassmen.

"If the Greeks did it, so can we," the watchword of the Sophomore Class at Homecoming, marked their enthusiastic spirit throughout the year. In September the sophomores welcomed the freshmen to LT and assumed the role of leaders in South Campus activities.

Their projects began this year with "Sophomore Socery", the class party, which was followed by the building of the Trojan War-inspired Homecoming float. The Class of '63 also helped produce the play, "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay". In June, looking forward to an active year at North Campus, the sophomores said farewell to South at a "Tab"-signing party in the patio.

Juniors mark year with more class

"Make with the bread" and "cool daddy" were appropriate expressions for the beatnik-inspired Junior Class Party, "Maynard's Masquerade," which was held in late fall. The first project of the year for the Juniors was sponsoring the Fall Play, "Years Ago", a drama depicting the life of the American actress, Ruth Gordon. In following weeks the Juniors had the honor of receiving third place for their Homecoming float, "Soaring 60's". In the spring the class continued the Junior tradition of serving the graduating class at Senior Salute and preparing the Senior Class Picnic.

Although the smallest class at LT, the Juniors were not lacking in originality. They were the first class in history to purchase Junior beanies—the underclass answer to senior sweat-shirts.

In future years we will have much to look back upon. The guidance and understanding of our class sponsors, Mrs. Shalek and Mr. Hansen, helped us through the bewilderment of our first year. As freshmen we experienced the good and the bad, enjoying the new Corral facilities and suffering from an epidemic of the Asian flu.

Driver training and the South Campus play, "Cheaper by the Dozen", were among the "firsts" credited to us in our sophomore year. Our athletes helped LT once again capture the President's Cup for the twelfth consecutive year by winning conference championships in wrestling and tennis.

We surveyed new surroundings at the beginning of our junior year as we moved to North Campus and thoroughly enjoyed using the student lounge for the first time. "Yogi Bear" set the mood for our highly successful class party, "Jellystone Jaunt".

Our senior year was by far the most outstanding. We began by selling more Christmas cards than any previous class. Bulky sweaters for the boys and shorter skirts for the girls set the fashion trend for the school. Classrooms were enlivened by a mass invasion of bees and wasps, but no casualties were suffered. Gina and Kim, our two foreign students, helped back our fine athletic teams as the squads strived to regain the President's Cup by maintaining first division standing in all sports. The profit of our record-breaking Christmas card sale provided the necessary funds to finance the class party, "Come By Us, Come Bayou," the class gift, and our last social function, as a class, the senior prom.

No matter how trite, a senior's final "Tab" note can provide a cherished memory in later years.

Membership in the National Honor Society is considered to be one of the most important milestones in a deserving high school student's career. All applicants must be in the top one-third of their class. Further elimination occurs with the selection of only those students who have shown superiority in the fields of scholarship, leadership, character, and service. Academic rank in class and the personality ratings supplied by teachers are also a helpful source of information. By the spring of their senior year, a total of fifteen per cent of the class has been chosen for membership in the Society. Five per cent were selected near the end of their junior year, and the remaining ten per cent in the spring of their senior year. Another requirement for membership is that the hopeful applicant must have studied the past two years at LT. Transfer students coming to LT before their junior year are under no handicap because grades and other useful records from their previous high school years are sent to LT for evaluation.
